Chips

Substitutions: Catholic University—Schmidt for Champa, Heiner for Schmidt, Geyer for Towell, Gerth for Howell, Champa for Heiner, Smythe for Champa. George Washington—none.

Thus ends the climax to an unparalleled season. The substitution business has provided this writer with a great deal of innocent amusement. There's a moral to it, however, and let those who rail at the Horatio-Alger-minded rail as they certainly will, namely, that a certain amount of fight coupled with a certain amount of ability, will do marvels.

For the benefit of those who have accused this column of talking too much football, the announcement that the season is ended comes no doubt as a glad relief. For our own part, the passing of football will do much to bring down our blood pressure and possibly enable us to get rid of a certain hoarseness of throat. But to recapitulate: Two games lost in a season that seemed fair to herald a series of defeats. A tremendous increase in spirit in the student body. Recognition for the jolly old alma mater.

As usual, co-eds with friends at the service schools, studes related to the Army and Navy, and others flocked up to the Army-Navy game at New York. Another thing to cause innocent pleasure to the mere man in Washington. The "Navy Co-Eds" saw their idols go down to defeat.

Three estimable young ladies, the Misses Le Menager, Maize, and Wiltbank, we note with gratification, have been initiated by Sphinx; five others, Julia Denning, Maxine Alverson, Mary Ewin, Louise DuBose and Alice Graham, have gone Hour Glass. A very nice Hatchet representation, and the young ladies will add to the sum total of their jewelry. Some day we shall write a monograph on the futility of college honor societies, send it to Mencken or somebody, have it promptly sent back, write to our Congressman about it, and finally forget all about it. And co-eds and men students alike will go on adding to the sum total of their jewelry. Hurrah!

Editor Walstrom emerged from seminars, etc., last week to announce that he would soon bring out the Silly Number of The Ghost, in which the entire staff of that sheet will revert to type. A futuristic cover by one of our grads, and the usual sort of thing inside.

Moving pictures of the four G. W. home games will be shown at the Football Banquet at the Lafayette tomorrow night. This bowls us over. We'll be on hand. This is too good to miss. Imagine seeing it all over again!

Sensible congressman introduces a bill to make fraternity houses in the District of Columbia tax-free. More than sensible in this city, where students are self-supporting to a large extent, and where the problem of house men causes a constant struggle for existence on the part of all the organizations.

Mother's Day, we hear, will be featured by a "gymnasium exhibition." What ho!

Our motto for this week: A School of Journalism for George Washington University. (Old stuff, says our demon editorial writer.)

Interfraternity basketball is now over, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon is winner in a remarkably close game. A season marked by upsets. Several teams including Kappa Alpha and Acacia, showed strength not present in previous years. This sort of thing helps make the series interesting.

And so to bed.

FOOTBALL HOP TO BE HELD FRIDAY, DECEMBER 16TH

The annual Football Hop will be held on Friday, December 16, at the University Gymnasium. This will unofficially close the football season for George Washington University, which has been the greatest season in the recent history of the University.

The Committee in charge has engaged a well-known orchestra to furnish music, and promises that the floor will be in A-1 condition for the Hop. The details of the affair will be announced in the forthcoming issue of the Hatchet.

SPHINX INITIATES THREE POPULAR CO-ED SENIORS

Marcelle LeMenager, Margaret Maize and Elizabeth Wiltbank Are Elected

ALL NEW MEMBERS ARE WRITERS FOR PAPERS

Prominence in Activities, High Scholarship, and Outstanding Personality are Basic Requirements

Marcelle Le Menager, Margaret Maize and Elizabeth Wiltbank were initiated into the Sphinx Honor Society on November 22. Sphinx is organized for the recognition of those girls who have maintained a scholarship average of twenty per cent above passing and who have been prominent in extra-curricular activities.

After the initiation a business meeting was held at which Miss Le Menager was elected secretary-treasurer of the society. The society's new secretary-treasurer was a reporter on the University Hatchet in 1925-26, Board of Editors 1926-27-28, Gamma Eta Zeta, professional journalistic fraternity, 1926-27-28, (secretary, 1926,) and Columbian Women Publicity Committee Chairman, 1927-28.

Miss Maize was elected to the Hour Glass Honor Society in 1926, and held the office of vice-president in 1927-28. She served as student assistant in Botany in the years 1925-26-27. Miss Maize has been an active member of the Y. W. C. A. 1925-26-27-28, in 1927-28 serving as chairman of the membership committee, and in 1927 she was chairman of the Y. W. C. A. Little Sister Party.

First Girl to Head Cherry Tree

She has been a member of the Cherry Tree staff since 1925, serving on the business staff in 1925-26, organization editor 1927, and now holds the position of Chairman of the Board, being the first girl to holds this office. By virtue of her position on the Cherry Tree, Miss Maize is a member of the Publications Council.

The new initiate has been prominent in dramatics ever since her registration at G. W., having been a member of the general Dramatic Association 1924-25-26, Managing Director of the Players in 1925, a member of the Dionysians 1926, and member of the Dramatic Council in 1925-26. In athletics, Miss Maize participated in

INTERFRAT TEA HOP PROVES BIG SUCCESS

300 Make Merry to Hot Band; Team Wildly Greeted After C. U. Clash

Nearly three hundred George Washington students returned to Corcoran Hall after the game last Thursday to enjoy the Interfraternity Tea Dance. The fact that it could not be called a victory celebration did not dampen the ardor of the University elite who soon found their old pep in spite of hoarse voices, and scarred the floors to the wailing tunes of Johnny Slaughter's Band.

About six o'clock the majority of the team entered, being wildly greeted by the dancers amidst the familar strains of, "Hail to the Buff and Blue." From then on the crowd missed very few steps as it grew warmer with the music.

Much brain power was consumed by many in their attempts to crash the gate, but due to the vigilance of the committee in charge few succeeded, although it seems a shame that there is not an entrance into the Hall from the cellar.

Credit is due the social committee from the Interfraternity Council composed of Sherman Johnson, Verne MacDonald, and Don Iglehart for the unusually good time provided.

DEGREE TO LINDBERGH

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (IP).—The first honorary degree has been presented to or bestowed upon Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whom so few will remember as having been the first to fly from New York to Paris back in the spring of 1927.

St. Josephs College here took upon itself the honor, giving Lindy the honorary degree of Master of Science in Aeronautics. The ceremony was a part of those in which the corner stone was laid for the beginning of a ten million dollar building program being undertaken by the college.

WOMEN DEBATERS OPEN BIG SEASON TOMORROW

Ruth Kernan Captains Team of Experienced Debaters

The first debate of the Women's team will be held with West Virginia Thursday, December 1, in Corcoran Hall 1, at 8 o'clock, on the negative side of the question: "Resolved; That the United States Should Now Abandon the Monroe Doctrine."

If the work they did last year is any indication, George Washington has a fine chance for success all this year in Women's Debate. Ruth Kernan, captain, and Lillian Rhodes represented G. W. last year; Virginia Frye showed fine work in the tryouts; and Louise Feinstein, alternate, was active in debate before entering G. W.

"SILLY" NUMBER ON CAMPUS SOON

Many New Innovations Presented In December Ghost; Cover By Noted Artist

MORE ENGRAVINGS USED

Other Periodicals Clamoring For Reprints of Ghost's Illustrations and Jokes

The Silly Number of the George Washington University Ghost will make its appearance Thursday morning, December 1. Because of the many new innovations which will be presented in this issue, it is anticipated that the December number will surpass those of October and November.

The cover, designed by Charles Dunn, a former G. W. student and now prominent Washington artist, is executed in five colors, and said to be one of the most unconventional covers appearing on any magazine.

New Members of Staff

The Silly Number will contain full page drawings and also special page features, one of the features being an anthology of all modern jokes. This number will contain many expensive halftone cuts as well as the usual large number of other engravings. At the present time the Ghost is offering as many engravings as any other college magazine. The new members who have been added to the art staff, and whose drawings appear in the Silly Number are Cecelia Fruitman, Elizabeth Bunten, and J. L. Buckey.

Ghost's Reputation

The publishers of the Ghost are adopting the policy of coverting all profits toward improving the magazine.

The Ghost is making a reputation for itself, both from a local and national standpoint. Sales on the downtown newsstands are increasing each month, and it is being exchanged with all other magazines of its type. Several requests have already been received from other periodicals for permission to reprint illustrations, while jokes from the Ghost are being reprinted in current issues of College Humor, Judge and the Literary Digest.

Plans Being Made For Annual Junior Prom

President William Hardy Announces Meeting of Junior Classes in December

President William Hardy, Jr., announced that the Junior Class, including all departments of George Washington University, will hold a meeting early in December, at which time the Junior Prom and Cherry Tree photographs are to be considered.

According to President Hardy, the plans already formulated for the Prom indicate that it will be the biggest and most brilliant social event of the entire school year. One of the very best orchestras available is being considered for this year's Prom. In addition to an excellent orchestra several surprise novelties are to be featured.

All Juniors of all departments of the University are urged to be present at the forthcoming meeting, the date of which will be announced soon, in order to assure the success of the affair and to offer suggestions and formulate final plans.

ANGLICANS TO DANCE

A meeting of the G. W. Episcopalian Club will be held at the home of Rolston Lyon, 217 Rittenhouse Street N. W., tomorrow, Thursday, December 1, at 8 p. m. Plans for the coming dance to be held Saturday evening, December 3, in Corcoran Hall, Room 1, will be discussed.

The dance is scheduled to get under way at 9 o'clock. Admission will be fifty cents per person.

ALUMNI TO FETE G. W. ELEVEN AT ANNUAL BANQUET

Hotel Lafayette To Be Scene of Dinner Tomorrow, December 1, At Seven O'Clock

MOVING PICTURES TO BE SHOWN OF HOME GAMES

Addresses Will Be Made by President Marvin, Mr. King and Dr. Hornaday

"Knighthood in all its glory, Athens in its bygone splendor, Spartans with all of their valor—none of these were more admirable than the courageous, golden-clad George Washington Colonials"—thus have the Colonial "Iron Men" been characterized in the public press. This is the team to which Washington Alumni of the University will pay honor due at the annual Football Dinner tomorrow night at seven o'clock at the Hotel Lafayette.

President and Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, members of the Board of Trustees and prominent graduates will honor the team by their presence upon this occasion.

Prominent Men to be Present

Talks by President Marvin, Mr. William Bruce King of the Board of Trustees, Dr. F. A. Hornaday, President of the Alumni Association and Coach "Maud" Crum are scheduled. As Master of Ceremonies, Lewis Moneyway will hold the key to the situation, and it is rumored that he will unlock a Pandora's box of secrets in the private lives of the "Iron Men." He also will introduce to the diners a number of international celebrities.

Through the courtesy of Dr. H. S. Hoffman, a graduate of the School of Medicine, moving pictures will be shown of all the home games which have been played this year, including those with American University, Fordham University, St. Vincent College and Catholic University, thus affording the gridiron heroes an opportunity of seeing themselves as others have seen them during the season just closed.

"Honey" Campbell to Sing

An entertainment program has been arranged which is headed by "Honey" Campbell, of Keith's, snappy singer of southern songs, and including Herbert Aldridge, tenor, accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth Gardner Coombs, and Selma Selinger Klein, interpreter of modern jazz, accompanied by her husband, Earl Klein.

A feature of the dinner, the out-

DATE OF VODVIL SHOW ADVANCED TO DEC. 8TH

Cup To Be Awarded By Board of Directors For Best Sorority or Fraternity Act

The Vodvil show will take place on Thursday, December 8, instead of December 15, as previously announced in issues of the Hatchet.

The change in schedule of the show is necessitated because of the beginning of the basketball season next month, which brings about a great demand for the use of the Gym. As there was no time available for the Vodvil it was thought agreeable to all tha it should be advanced a week.

In the meantime, all indications are pointing to a most successful Vodvil, as well as a program of unusually entertaining acts. Many of the organizations have already announced themselves as ready for tryouts.

Cup to be Awarded

The announcement that a cup would be awarded to the sorority, fraternity, or organization, presenting the best act has aroused keen interest in the 1927 show. The cup will be awarded by the Board of Directors of the Dramatic Association, and will remain in permanent possession of the winner.

Tryouts are being held for acts this week. On Monday and Tuesday they are taking place in Corcoran Hall 1, and on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, they will be held in the Pi Phi Rooms. Sororities should communicate with Kate Bannerman concerning their acts, and fraternities, with Bob Williams before full dress rehearsals.

Next week on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, full rehearsals will take place in the Gym. The public performance will occur on Thursday at 8.30 p. m.

CARDINALS OUT-POINT COLONIALS IN SERIES OF SPECTACULAR PLAYS

George Washington Cohorts Show Greater Ground-Gaining Consistency, Making Sixteen First Downs to Catholic University's Eight

FIFTEEN THOUSAND FANS WITNESS ONE OF MOST THRILLING CONTESTS OF YEAR

Foley is Greatest C. U. Point Scorer; Carey and Stehman Star for G. W.; Clapper Runs Ninety-five Yards for Touchdown; Colonials Play Entire Game Without Substitutions, Continuing Record

By PERN E. HENNINGER

By a series of unusual plays, the Catholic University Cardinals defeated the George Washington Colonials on Thanksgiving, in the Brookland Stadium, in the most spectacular gridiron battle ever witnessed by the 15,000 fans and students who were on edge throughout the hectic struggle.

An old jinx which Catholic University seems to hold over George Washington seemed to be working overtime to give the Cardinals all the breaks which enabled the underdog team to administer to George Washington its second reverse of the season—27 to 21.

The Crummen outplayed and outrushed the Cardinals in every period, making 16 first downs to 8 for C. U., but each time when a score seemed certain a fumble or an intercepted pass removed the threat.

It is difficult to name any single player as a star, for the players of both teams covered themselves with glory, fighting for every inch of ground with the full strength of their rugged bodies. But in every game there are certain feats that make a performer stand out. Captain Ray Foley, playing his last game for Catholic University, was the pillar of strength for his eleven. The playing of Carey and Stehman for George Washington was nothing short of brilliant.

Two of the most spectacular pieces of open-field running to be seen anywhere were displayed by Clapper, of George Washington, and Murphy of the Cardinal clad cohorts. The former scored G. W.'s second touchdown when he sprinted 95 yards from the kick-off at the opening of the second half. The latter scored C. U.'s second six-pointer in the second quarter when he raced 91 yards after intercepting a George Washington pass.

First Quarter

Stehman caught Tierney's kick-off on George Washington's 5-yard line and returned it to the 15-yard line before he was nailed. Clapper's attempt through the line failed, Sapp,

PEP CLUB RALLY DRAWS OVER 400

Corcoran Hall Scene of Pep Meeting Last Wednesday Before Game

BILLIE WRIGHT SINGS HITS

Lack of Reserve Material Deplored by Coach Crum in Short Speech to Students

A giant Pep Club meeting was held in Corcoran Hall last Wednesday noon with over four hundred students present in preparation for the big grid clash with Catholic University on the following day. The sight certainly caused thrills to run up and down the spines of those present when the first cheer resounded at the entrance of the gridiron warriors.

With the football team seated on the right of the dais, Ford Young, president of the club, and President Marvin presided over the assembly calling upon Darrell Crane to lead in the cheering. Here and now it may be stated that the vociferous responses were the best ever heard since the freshmen smoker early in the fall which set a precedent for the University.

The meeting opened with a short speech by Young, and a big cheer for Prexy Marvin, followed with, "Hail to the Buff and Blue." Dr. Chipman of the Alumni Association then gave a few remarks relative to the band which had been engaged for the game.

Crum Gives Football Talk

Coach Crum rendered a vocal selection entitled, "We're out to win, but it all depends on you.' This was received with cheers.

The fact that five men were leaving the varsity this year, and that it would be necessary to replace them with players from this year's freshmen squad was told by Coach Crum. The number of men now on the first-[illegible] team was deplored, it being learned that there were only eighteen frosh left who could be counted on for the varsity next season. The girls were urged to use a little influence on the men of the University, and get them out for the team in the future.

Following the coach's talk, the individual members of the team were cheered in turn, so that by the time the last one had been acclaimed, the audience felt more like whispering than yelling.

Several hits from "Not Yet Fleurette" were sung by Elizabeth Wright amidst enthusiastic applause, and assistance from the gallery. Elmer Brown, the University's own composer, accompanied at the piano.

Throughout the entire Pep Club meetng there reigned a spirit of wild enthusiasm which broke out spontaneously, wholeheartedly, and certainly sincerely. The so-called school spirit was surely in evidence on this day if never before.

DOUBLE HONOR TO PREXY

WASHINGTON, D. C. (IP).—Alumni of two colleges gathered here last week to pay honor to one man, an alumnus of the one college, president of the other.

Dr. Ernest Hatch Wilkins, of the class of 1920 of Amherst and newly elected president of Oberlin was the honored guest, at a dinner of alumni from the two institutions, attended by many notables of each college.

TROUBADOURS SELECT PERSONNEL FOR PLAY

Students Wanted to Write Music and Supply Dialogue; Additional Tryouts Soon

Tryouts were held last night for the cast which will be selected to play the leading roles in the Troubadours' third annual musical comedy to be produced in January.

This year's production, as yet unnamed, is the collaboration of Elmer Brown and Larry Parker, writers of the music and book respectively.

These authors have already one success to their credit, the 1926 production of "Not Yet Fleurette." In 1925, the initial musical comedy of the Troubadours, "Just a Kiss" was the work of Ellsworth Tompkins and Sterry Waterman.

This year, the managers are looking for new talent that will be available for this year's production as well as future ones.

All students who can write music and can help supply dialogue for the book, as well as the many other details in the production work, will be offered an opportunity in additional tryouts in the near future.

In this way, they will be able to at first obtain experience, and later work up to managers of various departments, a system employed in the Dramatic Association.

The Troubadours will produce this year in a theater, probably the Wardman Park, early in January.

G. W. ARCHITECTS SCORE

Henry King and Arthur Darton, architecture students, received mention for their problems in architecture sent to the Beaux Arts Institute in New York last month.

As work was submitted from Architecture Schools throughout the country, it is interesting to note that of the two sent in from George Washington, both received mention.

WASHINGTON, D. C., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1927

THE G. W. CLUB

In all the leading universities of the United States there is an organization composed of the students and alumni who have earned their letters in some major school activity. In Harvard it is known as the "Varsity Club," and in Georgetown, the "G. U. Club." These organizations actively support extra-curricular activities, especially the football team. Only a short time ago the "I Club" of Illinois College presented a football field to the college, and the same club is now equipping that field.

The G. W. Club of George Washington, although recently organized, has been supporting student activities, and has had a remarkable growth. While the club is to be commended for its work thus far, its present activities should be only a stepping stone for greater accomplishment in the furtherance of activities at George Washington University.

MR. BOWMAN'S BILL

A bill introduced by Representative Frank L. Bowman, of West Virginia, would make fraternity homes in the District of Columbia tax-free. We have often wondered why such a law never existed. Certainly in the more forward-looking States such laws have been on the statute books for some time.

There are reasons for such a law which may not appear immediately to the person unacquainted with college life and student problems. Educational, religious, and charitable institutions are not taxed; and the fraternity house may be said to be one of the appurtenances of an educational institution.

As a matter of fact, fraternity houses which are owned are usually the result of hard work and planning by students, or by alumni, who have but recently graduated. The students actually in the university generally are responsible for financing; very often old grads drift away and forget. These students, particularly in a city like Washington, are quite often self-supporting, and for them it is no easy task. A fraternity house is never a money-making proposition; nobody profits by it in a monetary way. It is a notorious fact that most fraternities barely break even.

It is very much to be hoped that the bill does not die in committee, according to the time-honored congressional custom. We rely on the good sense and liberality of the Seventieth Congress.

A WORD TO THE WISE

The Administration has issued a statement advising all seniors to go to the Registrar's Office and have their credits checked for graduation. This merits immediate attention.

The senior must be sure that he has met the requirements for his major to the satisfaction of the head of that department. He must see that he has completed all the subjects required for graduation. By prompt action in this matter he may discover in what ways he has been found wanting and remedy this in the second semester. Also, underclassmen may take warning and plan their courses accordingly.

It is only too easy for the undergraduate to take courses as they come, leaving the bookkeeping of credits to an omniscient office. The office fulfills its function with invariable accuracy, but the undergraduate may occasionally confuse his four-hour and six-hour courses with disastrous results. The simple and sound precaution of checking up will prevent many alarms when June draws near and any inadequacies of credits may mean failure to graduate.

As somebody with a passion for statistics said, "If all the turkeys consumed by George Washington students were placed in a line, the line would extend from—but we've forgotten where it would extend, and who cares, anyway? The important thing is that they were eaten. It may have been the suspicion that after such a dinner one would feel very little like celebrating that caused most of the Thanksgiving parties to be given before Thursday. Or, there is just the possibility that too many felt the necessity of attending the Army-Navy game and various other attractions in distant places.

Among those seen at the Army-Navy game from George Washington were: Bill Shaw, Dicky Simpson, Leonard Jenson, Virginia Latterner, Jessie Booth, Helen Furer, Barbara MacFall, Margaret Harriman, Frances Kiefer, and Irma Baulsir.

"Mac" McKee spent the week-end attending the dances at Washington and Lee.

Frances Robinson went to Roanoke, Virginia, for the holidays.

The dance given by Kappa Sigma at the L'Aiglon on November 22, was very successful. Dinner was served at the numerous small tables of the upper ballroom, with dancing between courses, and was followed by dancing in the large ballroom.

The night of November 23 was evidently a popular one with the fraternities as there were several dances given that night. Sigma Phi Epsilon's dance that night, given at their chapter house was greatly enjoyed by the members and guests present. Another of the dances held that night was the Sigma Nu dance at the chapter house. This system of arrangement is very cruel to the fair co-ed who can attend only one dance per evening!

The Sigma Nu's also entertained a number of guests at Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday before the game.

In spite of the fact that the game didn't turn out so well as we had hoped, quite a number seemed to feel well enough to go down to the "Victory Tea Dance." This was a very good dance. Several of the "old grads" like Babe Fly and J. T. White lent their presence to the affair.

Sigma Kappa promisees entertained all other promisees at a tea given Sunday, November 20, in the Sigma Kappa rooms. It was well attended, and Dean Rose was prominent among the guests.

Sigma Chi held its annual Thanksgiving Formal at the Carlton Hotel last Wednesday night with the Dagmoir Band playing music that had even the chaperones stepping. Many of the alumni were present as well as the active chapter. President and Mrs. Marvin were guests of the chapter, together with delegates from the other fraternities on the campus.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon's chapter house was the scene of much merriment on the evening of November 23rd, with over sixty couples present at its Turkey Eve dance. The Naomi Band was plenty warm, so much so that the dance was continued far into the morning.

Theta Upsilon Omega celebrated the annual festive day with one of the most successful dances held this season. In addition to the chapter there were a large number of guests present from many of the other fraternities who enjoyed the melodies of Hanes Anderson's Syncopaters.

Xi Chapter of Sigma Tau honorary engineering fraternity announces the pledging of Martin Deuterman, Rex P. Mulligan, and Lewis H. Phelps.

Julia Denning and Peggy Eckels traveled to Philadelphia Thanksgiving Day to see the Penn-Cornell game.

Sarah Richardson and Janie Martin went to V. M. I. over the holidays.

The pledges of the local chapter of the Kappa Alpha Order gave a dance in honor of the active members on Friday evening, November 18, at the Indian Springs Country Club. A hot orchestra, attractive decorations and good entertainment each had a share in the success of the evening.

Delta Zeta announces the engagement of Florence Berry, one of their pledges, to Edward R. French. The wedding is to take place on New Year's Eve.

Lorena Carroll entertained a number of friends at tea on Sunday, November 13.

The pledges of Sigma Phi Epsilon gave their annual "Ghost Show" for the members of the fraternity on Friday, November 18.

The students in Archaeology 53 were the guests of Mrs. Mitchell Carroll of the faculty, on Saturday afternoon, November 26, at her home on 20th Street.

Mrs. Frances Carpenter Huntington, daughter of the late Frank G. Carpenter, world traveler and correspondent, gave an informal talk on her summer at St. Jean de Luz in Southwestern France. Mrs. Huntington collected many legends of the neighboring Basque peasants, a race whose unknown origin and language continue to be a puzzle to scholars.

Thanksgiving was celebrated at the Phi Sigma Kappa House by a dance given on that night. The chaperones for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Russell and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon D. Northrop.

The Styx dance held last Wednesday night at the Potomac Boat Club, is reported as being a successful affair. George Skadding and orchestra furnished excellent music.

Theta Delta Chi's Thanksgiving dance, last Wednesday night was an unusual success. The guests of honor were Peggy Beasley and Reggie Pledger, who announced their engagement week before last at the Pi Phi shower for Miss Eleanor Haddox.

The Eminent Supreme Recorder of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity was a visitor at the chapter house during the past week, where he was entertained at dinner, and a guest at the S. A. E.-K. S. basketball game Monday evening.

Delta Tau Delta's new home on K Street was opened with a peppy dance last Friday evening which took the place of a house-warming, and proved to be much "warmer." A good orchestra played with a true appreciation of the occasion, and had the crowd stepping as it had never stepped before. In addition to the chapter there were many guests present from other fraternities who did not fail to express to the fraternity its congratulations in acquiring such a house so ideally appointed for fraternity purposes.

Gate and Key Honor fraternity will hold its second dance of the year at the Phi Sig House on Saturday, December 3. Elmer Brown's music has been engaged for the evening.

Five members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon's team motored to New York following the championship basketball game last Saturday night to appropriately celebrate the victory. Larry Knapp, Scott Rigby, Frank Hale, Huck Durand and George Muth made the trip in Muth's "big open job."

Miss Betty Brandenburg entertained Dean Rose and several members of last summer's tour at Tea on Sunday afternoon at her home.

ATTENTION, FRESHMEN

The first meeting of the Freshman Class of Columbian College will be held on Monday, December 5th, in Room 29, Corcoran Hall, at 12.00 noon.

Freshman activity questions will be discussed and voted upon and all class members are urged to attend.

POTENTIAL PROFS

No. 6—JOHN CHARLES LOCKMAN DONALDSON

Undisputed possession of the title, Youngest Potential Professor of the University, is claimed by young Mr. Donaldson, aged three months. Though the young man has been observing this little old world with his large and deep blue eyes for a very short period, he has been considering some flattering offers in several professions.

The baby's, pardon us, we mean young man's, grandfather insists that horticulture is the only logical occupation to follow, and offers an orange grove in Florida as a laboratory. Young John's father, who besides holding that important post is incidentally Chairman of the Commerce Department, contends that a more utilitarian profession should be selected. John's desire to pose for photographs with one hand upraised, and his willingness to "bawl" people out, seems to qualify the youth for a position as traffic cop.

John Charles Lockman Donaldson himself holds that his father's profession of teaching is good enough for him. The subjects of commerce is much too broad to suit young John. Transportation in any form is much more to his liking, though he likes perambulators and motor cars best at present. So fond is he of transportation that he objects vociferously when his vehicle even pauses. No time should be lost in acquiring the services of a young man whose heart is so intent upon his life's work. Trustees, please note.

DEAN ROSE'S TEA TODAY

Dean Rose will hold her regular monthly tea today in the Women's Building from 4.30 p. m. to 5.30 p. m. All students of the University are invited.

It costs a lot. but Camel must have the best

It is true that Camel is the quality cigarette, but it costs to make it so. To make Camel the favorite that it is costs the choicest crops of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown. It requires the expense of a blending that leaves nothing undone in the liberation of tobacco taste and fragrance.

But the fame that Camel has won is worth all the trouble. It has brought modern smokers a new realization of excellence. They are particular and fastidious and they place Camel first.

Your taste will delight itself in these choice tobaccos. Camels get better the more of them you smoke. Their subtle tastes are unfolded by experience. They are always delightfully smooth.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Takes Championship

KAPPA ALPHA IS DEFEATED BY A SCORE OF 27-25

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Wins Second Cup In Three Years

S. A. E. UNDEFEATED; K. A. WON 4 GAMES—LOST 2

Silver Cup Will be Awarded to Victor at Interfrat Prom in March

Before the largest throng of the series, Sigma Alpha Epsilon last Saturday night won the inter-fraternity championship from K. A. in the most exciting and bitterly contested game of the current season. The final score was 27 to 25.

Both teams battled fiercely, the lead changing many times, and kept the crowd on their feet throughout. Kappa Alpha drew first blood and led at the quarter, nine to seven; field goals by Lindsey put S. A. E. out in front before the close of the half, eleven to ten, but the doughty Kappa Alpha team was leading again at the end of the third period, seventeen to sixteen.

Fourth Period Hectic

Then during a hectic final ten minute period, S. A. E. opened up with a whirlwind offensive that carried them into the lead three times. Each time Kappa Alpha tied the score. Finally, S. A. E. made a five point gap, which K. A. was unable to close even by the most supreme effort before the final whistle.

The champions earned their victory by the hardest kind of playing. They fought for everything they got, and at no time did either team have a comfortable working margin.

Vigorous defensive play of both teams featured, that of S. A. E. being slightly superior, and in the final analysis largely responsible for the victory. On more than one occasion K. A.'s high power scoring machine threatened to break loose, but each time it was smothered before much damage had been done.

Lindsey and Alexander Star

Each team had its outstanding players, Lindsey for the winners, and Alexander for the losers. The former was high point scorer with six field goals and three foul goals for a total of fifteen. Several of his field goals were of the head line variety.

Alexander with a nine point total played a like part for Kappa Alpha, but he must share his honors with Larry Phillips, who participated in nearly every play, time and again breaking through the opposing defense to pave the way to a score. His six foul goals out of ten chances counted heavily.

The play of Knapp for the vicitors, and Terry for Kappa Alpha was also noteworthy.

Kappa Sigma Won Last Year

Sigma Alpha Epsilon has lost one championship game in three years, that being to Kappa Sigma, the interfrat leaders of last year. The silver loving cup awarded by the interfraternity council to the victor will be awarded along with the bowling cup at the Interfraternity Prom, usually held in March.

Interfrat court play now gives way to varsity basketball practice, the first intercollegiate game of which will be played shortly before Christmas. The next interfrat competition will take the form of bowling, which will start in earnest with the beginning of the second semester.

HUN ATROCITIES FAKED

COLUMBUS, Ohio (IP).—Stories of German atrocities on the western front during the World War were invented by the English intelligence office, headed by General John V. Charter, in London, according to Clarence H. Cramer, University scholar in history, who gave an address recently on propaganda measures in the war, before the political science and history graduate conference at Ohio State University.

"The English manufactured wholesale stories of Hun bestial atrocities and circulated them throughout the world," Cramer declared. "Thus, as reported by propagandists, the Germans ground their dead soldiers into soap; hurled Belgium babies into the air and caught them on bayonets; and cut off the ears of the Allies' chaplains."

The "soap" propaganda was especially invented, he said, for the benefit of the Chinese who hold dead men in high reverence.

Coach Crum To Be Basketball Mentor This Year For First Time

VARSITY MEN AVAILABLE

Several Positions as Assistant Managers are Now Open, Manager Herzog Announces

In keeping with the policy of general advancement of athletics at George Washington University a schedule has been arranged for the forthcoming basketball season which includes the strong Naval Academy team, which is to be played at Annapolis on January 7, 1928.

The signing of this team will be greeted with delight by the student body of the University. For a number of years G. W. has been represented by strong basketball fives and from present indications Coach Crum, who have full charge of basketball this year, will develop a team strong enough to meet the best college teams of the country. After having turned out a football team of championship caliber, Coach Crum will be watched with interest by those who feel that he will be equally as successful with basketball although this is his first year as mentor.

Five Veterans Report

Sapp, Carey, Goodson, Perry, and Allshouse, all of whom have seen varsity service in years past, will no doubt form the foundation around which a good team will be formed. Many of the inter-fraternity league stars were on hand at the first practice which was held in the University Gymnasium last Monday, November 28.

Manager Herzog made the announcement today that several assistant managerships are vacant and all those who submit their names to him will be given an opportunity to fill the positions.

The next basketball practice will be held tonight and regular practice will be held on every Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday of each week throughout the entire basketball season.

STUDENT CIGAR CHAMP

BALTIMORE, Md. (IP).—"Fifty cigars in 12 hours" was the goal set for himself by Vincent Maddi, student in the school of medicine at the University of Maryland, to settle an argument over the ill effects of tobacco. Friends sat beside him to record his physical condition. The first three hours were O. K. He remained normal. Then his pulse began to climb, until it reached 108 instead of 80, his respiration 30 instead of 17, and his blood pressure from 120 to 132. After eight hours, while on his thirtieth cigar, Maddi became ill and quit.

"I might have suffered serious ill effects had I continued," admitted Maddi later.

CO-EDS BALK AND QUIT

NEW YORK, N. Y. (IP).—Smith, Vassar, Wellesley, Bryn Mawr and Mount Holyoke Colleges, at the conclusion of the conference of women's student governments withdrew to form a conference of their own. They will also join with the National Student Federation.

Conflicting interests between small and large colleges led the five large groups to leave the remainder of the original group of sixty to legislate for themselves. The withdrawing members believe that by devoting their interest to one like group, and to the large National Federation, they can gain all the benefits to be derived from student government associations.

PROFESSOR DONALDSON OPERATED ON YESTERDAY

Dr. White Seeks to Remedy Professor's Gastric Trouble

Professor John Donaldson, Chairman of the Commerce Department, underwent an operation yesterday at the George Washington University Hospital.

It is expected that this operation will cure the recurring gastric disturbances which have troubled Professor Donaldson during the past few months, and more especially within the last week or so, when his physician deemed a rest advisable. Last week Professor Donaldson spent in Pennsylvania, and returned to this city shortly before the operation which Dr. White performed yesterday.

Professor Donaldson will not return to his classes for several weeks yet, for physicians advise a complete rest before he resumes his work at the University.

CO-ED TOSSERS TO STAGE EXHIBITION GAME DEC. 2

An exhibition basketball game will be held in the gymnasium, Friday, December 2, at two o'clock under the direction of Miss Davis.

Miss Davis will make a selection of the best women players in the University to demonstrate basketball at its best. Definite choice of the girls to take part has not yet been made. However, among those to play will be Julia Denning, Louise Omwake, Myrtle Crouch, Naomi Crumley, Jean Sime, Jenny Turnbull, Mary Sprout and Betty Brandenburg.

S. A. E. CLINCHES LEAGUE HONORS

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Overwhelms Kappa Sigma In Fast Tilt

KNAPP STARS FOR S. A. E.

One-sided Contest Surprises Large Crowd of Enthusiastic Rooters

Concluding the schedule in interfraternity league one, Sigma Alpha Epsilon overwhelmed Kappa Sigma in clinching the championship of their league before a large crowd of enthusiastic rooters on the night of November 21. The score was 26 to 8.

Kappa Sigma struggled gamely, making it more of a contest than the score would indicate, but was practically helpless before S. A. E's clever and accurate passing. A single field goal, by Popham in the early part of the contest, was the total result of the losers' effort in that direction. The rest of their points were made from the free throw line, Canney scoring four.

Except for a few moments at the outset of the game the winners held the lead throughout and at no time were they in danger.

S. A. E's Passing Effective

S. A. E. relied largely on a fast passing game to score most of their points. They, in addition to having a strong offense, displayed an almost impenetrable defense, and some real sharpshooting when it came to making foul goals, scoring eleven out of a possible fourteen.

The playing of Knapp, Proctor and Lindsey for the victors stood out, each one playing an excellent game. Knapp came through with three pretty shots from the floor, leading both teams in this respect. Popham and Canney were Kappa Sigma's outstanding players, Popham making the only field goal for his team while Canney scored all but two of his team's foul shots.

The Kappa Sigs displayed the poorest passing and goal shooting done by them this year. Out of twenty-one chances they made but six foul shots.

Cheering Enthusiastic

Both teams were well represented in the audience, and the cheering was loud, concerted, and frequent. The S. A. E. contingent were forced to make use of an automobile horn to assist them.

The players were, for S. A. E.: Knapp, Crofts, Proctor and Neil, forwards; Lindsey, center; Rigby, Whyte and Durand, guards. For Kappa Sigma: Alewine and Robertson, forward; Popham, center; Canney and Deuterman, guards.

Lieutenant Foot officiated as umpire, assisting Referee Frank Summer, who heretofor has performed both duties.

FROSH GRIDDERS END BRIGHT YEAR, ARE UNDEFEATED

Coach "Buck" Avis' Yearling Eleven Not Scored Upon In Four Battles

SCORE 80 POINTS AS AGAINST OPPONENTS' 0

G. W. Victory Over Dahlgren Team Marks Sailors' First Defeat in Three Years

Looking back over the most successful football season that George Washington University has ever witnessed brings to light the fact that never before in the history of the school has the freshman football team been of the high caliber as the present one.

Not once was the freshman goal line crossed, nor was there a single point scored against the yearling grindmen developed by Coach "Buck" Avis. Four decisive victories in as many starts tells the story. Against elevens of noted strength the Colonial freshmen rolled up a total of 80 points.

Starting the training with something like thirty men, the squad finally decreased to eighteen players although several were on the injured list, making the actual fighting force in the last two games fifteen. Injuries to the first-string men forced the coach to replace the entire backfield with reserves who proved their worth by very capably carrying on the success started by the more experienced players.

Defeat St. Alban's

The freshmen opened the season with an overwhelming defeat of St. Albans, one of the leading prep schools in this section by a score of 37 to 0. This game gave the University its first chance to see the freshmen in action, and proved to Coach Avis that there was real power in his yearling squad. Smith, captain of the first-year eleven, and Terry, quarterback, displayed unusually fine form in this clash, accounting for 25 of the total points scored. Rangely, a back, crashed through repeatedly for good gains, establishing his reputation as one of the best ball-carriers for the young Colonials.

Journeying to Virginia for its first trip, the frosh eleven brought back the laurels at the expense of the Swavely Academy to the tune of 30 to 0. Berkowitz and Terry were the outstanding gridmen of this fray proving their superiority over any two players of the opposing team.

St. John's cadets faced the yearlings in the third game of the season, and found the downtowners a hard problem to solve, in fact, failing to find the answer, the score favored the "G" Street boys 7 to 0. George Washington's frosh team did not fare as well as the score indicated, however, several of the best men receiving injuries which kept them on the bench during subsequent practice.

Score on Sailors

Coach Avis next invaded the territory of the Dahlgren Naval School, met a fast, heavy and experienced group of ball tossers who had not been defeated in three consecutive years, and proved that all dope pots can be upset, by beating them 7 to 0. Joe Rangely played a great game, scoring the lone touchdown of the encounter, but to the whole team goes well-deserved praise for the great game they played.

The yearlings of Catholic University refused to meet the George Washington frosh in the preliminary game which was to have been staged on Turkey Day. This latter game would have been a fitting climax to the freshman season, and it is with a logical right that Coach Avis charges claim a forfeit, which up until the last day, was scheduled, and called off by the Brookland freshmen at the very last moment.

Next year will undoubtedly see several of the freshmen of this year wearing the varsity colors. With the second season for the operation of the one year rule approaching George Washington University must look to the yearlings of the past season to fill the positions left vacant on the varsity squad.

Elongated Pedagogical Specimen Epitomizes Statistical Survey

Composite Gridiron Achievements Propounded With Interminable Sequence of Jejune Facts -- Ecclesiastical Aggregation Annihilated As Aggressive Axemen Attack Angrily

At the close of the George Washington-Catholic University game on Thanksgiving Day, the writer was diffidently approached by a tall exiguous youth whose mild zaffer-tinted eyes regarded the world meekly from behind enormous horn-rimmed spectacles. Despite the seeming effeminacy of his nature, there was a subtle something in his expression that betrayed the indefatigable zetetic that moved behind this placid countenance.

"Who was the victor and what was the total sum of the points scored?" he asked when he had stopped before me.

"Catholic U., 27 to 21, imbecile. Weren't you among the 15,000 in the stands?" That a calm and peace-loving soul as myself should answer in this brusque tone could only indicate that a bitter disappointment was tormenting my patriotic soul.

Figures Show Win

"O, dear!" exclaimed the youth, "aside from the score my figures show that George Washington won."

"What blasted figures are you talking about?"

"While those foolish people were shouting, I had a most wonderful time gathering statistics. You know," he hastened to explain, "I gather statistics for the Government."

With that the statistician handed me several sheets of paper covered with mathematical calculations which my poor mind was unable to grasp. I gathered, however, that he figured the Colonials to have outplayed the Cardinals 2 to 1, and in that, at least, we heartily concurred.

In the first quarter of the game the Colonials scored five first downs to two for C. U.; scoring a total of 125 yards against 77 for the Cardinals. In this period the Crummen attempted six forward passes, three of which were good for a total of 55 yards. Two were incomplete and one was intercepted by the foe. C. U. attempted one pass which failed. George Washington fumbled once in this period and C. U. recovered the ball.

Second Period Results

The second period gave the Colonials a very decided statistical advantage. This period saw the Crummen hold the Cardinals from gaining a single first down while they reeled off five for a total gain of 174 yards. C. U. made 106 yards. This period saw G. W. throw seven forwards, three of which went for gains totaling 38 yards. Two were grounded and two were intercepted by the enemy. The Cardinals attempted three passes, but none was completed. This period gave George Washington an opportunity to pick up a stray C. U. fumble.

Cardinals Outplayed

The third period found G. W. still outgaining the Cards. The concentrated Colonial drive netted four first downs for a total gain of 173 yards. The Cardinals, on the other hand, were able to make only two first downs, scoring a total of 105 yards. At this stage, however, the Cardinals were more successful with the aerial attack, advancing 53 yards on two completed passes out of five attempts. The best the Colonials could do was to register a 10-yard gain on one completed pass in five attempts. The Cards again recovered a G. W. fumble.

In the final period, as in all the other periods, the Crummen scored a greater number of first downs than their opponents. The figures this time standing at 4 to 2. The Cardinals gained 69 yards to 84 yards for G. W. The Colonials scored 72 yards on three passes while the best the Cardinals were able to score was 60 yards on two successful passes in three attempts. One George Washington heave was snared by the Cardinal secondary defense. C. U. fumbled once but recovered the ball.

By adding the figures of the separate quarters we find that George Washington made 16 first downs for a total of 556 yards, while 8 first downs for a total of 357 was the best Catholic University could do. The Colonials attempted 22 forward passes, 11 of which were completed, 7 incompleted, and 4 intercepted by the foe. The total gain on passes was 175 yards. The Cardinals made 103 yards through the air in 4 successful efforts in 12 attempts. George Washington fumbled twice, both fumbles being recovered by Catholic University. The Cards fumbled twice, recovering one fumble and allowing the Crummen to recover the other. Each team was penalized twice for a total of 15 yards each.

CLAY ESPEY ELECTED G. W. CLUB PRESIDENT

Club to Renew its Activity Among Alumni Members is New Aim

Henry Clay Espey was elected President of the G. W. Club at a meeting held on Wednesday, November 23. "Clay" was a member of the George Washington rifle team during the years 1921-22-23-24, having been manager and shooting member during his last year. He is a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, and was elected to membership in Pyramid in 1924. At present Clay is First Vice President of the Business High School Alumni Association.

The election of an alumnus to the Presidency of the G. W. Club marks a new departure in the matter of the control of its activities. Already there is a movement afoot to unite all of the alumni who have taken part in some major activity in George Washington University. It is hoped to eventually form an organization which will help foster athletics and all other student activities.

The G. W. Club was organized in 1924, with Hillory A. Tolson as member No. 1. Since that time the annual Football Hops and inter-class track and field meets have been given under the auspices of the club. The permanent record boards on which are inscribed the names of the winners of high point trophys in the annual class meets were also presented to the University by the club.

HARVARD GETS TREASURE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (IP). — The treasure room of the Widener Library of Harvard University has acquired a valuable copy of Milton's poems, once possessed by Samuel Taylor Coleridge, the English poet, and bearing his signature.

The poems were edited in this edition by Thomas Wharton, and printed in 1791. The volume came into Coleridge's possession in 1823 as a gift, and on almost every page there appear profuse notes in the poet's rather cramped handwriting. In 1921 John Drinkwater, the British dramatist, acquired the book, which soon after came into the possession of Norton Perkins, Harvard '98, who left it to the Harvard library.

OMWAKE LOSES FINALS TO DAVIS

Miriam Davis Wins Posponed Tennis Finals In Close Match Thursday

OMWAKE TAKES FIRST SET

Both Players Have Similar Game, Using Back-Hand Strokes Almost Exclusively

The 1927 women's tennis championship was captured by Miriam Davis last Tuesday, November 22, when she won two snappy sets to Lou Omwake's one on the University tennis court before a large audience.

Omwake stepped out to a nice start by taking the first set easily at 6-2, whereupon Davis rallied and brought in the next two sets with a score of 6-2, 6-4.

The two contestants for the championship title won their way down the line of original entrants in the tournament, both of them having won their previous matches easily and well. When the pair of winners met across the net in the finals, they were very evenly matched, and the outcome of the contest was a question from the first game to the last.

The styles of the two players were quite similar, however, Omwake's serve was somewhat harder than that of Davis, but the regular precision of the latter was a fair equalizer. Both players were very steady and cool as they met the other's long strokes. Each one plays quite far back in the court, seldom coming up to play at the net. Both girls have strong, well-developed back-hand strokes, which they put to good use in covering the court.

The score was kept by Channing Davis, and the match was refereed by Miss Eugenia Davis and Myrtle Crouch.

come of which is occasioning much speculation, is the election of a captain for next year's grid team, and in this connection a number of "favorite sons" have been mentioned.

Alumni Clubs Interested

Alumni clubs throughout the country are displaying lively interest in the event and will do their part, via wireless, telegram and radio, in paying tribute to the team.

Miss Irene M. Pistorio of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association, is responsible for the very attractive decorations which will lend atmosphere to the occasion, and Mr. Harold E. Warner, also of the Executive Committee, is actively at work on other details of the arrangements.

Local Alumni Urged to Attend

Coming as it does just one week after the Thanksgiving Day clash with Catholic University, the dinner will serve as a most effective wind-up of the football season—a season, which, according to a local newspaper, "has won for George Washington University a secure position among the leading college football teams of this section."

An urgent invitation has been issued to the four thousand local alumni of the University to attend, and because of the enthusiasm aroused by the splendid record of this year's team, a large turnout is anticipated.

Reservations for the dinner may be made by communicating with the Alumni Office, 2100 G Street, or tickets may be bought at the Hotel Lafayette tomorrow night.

ORCHESTRA TO HOLD CHAPEL

The G. W. Orchestra will entertain at a musical chapel soon.

The next practice is Friday at 2.45 p. m. in Corcoran Hall 1. Violins, especially are needed. The orchestra is playing light classics.

Gamma Beta Pi and Phi Mu Defeat Sigma Kappa and Zeta Tau Alpha

Naomi Crumley, Gamma Beta Pi and Katherine Bannerman, Phi Mu Are High Scorers

Gamma Beta Pi won a decisive basketball victory over Sigma Kappa on Tuesday, November 22, with a score of 33-5. Immediately afterwards Phi Mu overwhelmed Zeta Tau Alpha 43 to 1.

In the first game the Gamma Beta Pi's made shot after shot and the Sigma Kappa guards seemed unable to protect their basket. The most sensational player of the game was Naomi Crumley who scored 32 of the 33 points made by the winning team. On the opposing team, Roberta Wright was the only girl to break through the Gamma Beta Pi guards to score. Fewer fouls were called in this match than in any of the inter-sorority games played.

WOMEN'S RIFLE TEAM RECEIVES CHALLENGES

Competitive Matches Are Still Being Held to Select Varsity Rifle Squad

The George Washington Women's Rifle team will shoot its first match of the year against the University of West Virginia on December 17. The encounter will be telegraphic.

The rifle season has consisted primarily of selections of varsity material and practice for the competition to come. Final selections will be made before the match on December 17. Girls who showed promise in the Beginners and Class matches will compete as well as freshmen who held good high-school records in shooting. All shooting is being done this year with decimal targets.

George Washington has received challenges from the University of California, Gettysburg and Oklahoma Agriculture and Mechanical College. As soon as answers are returned to these challenges and the George Washington challenges have been heard from, a definite schedule will be announced.

Night classes in rifle are still being held and are becoming popular. At present the hours are from 7 until 9 on Tuesdays. If any girls find these hours inconvenient it is possible to make other arrangements which will be more satisfactory.

SCALPERS HIT ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO (IP). — An army of 100 "under cover men" working under the direction of federal agents, made as sure as possible that not one spectator at the Stanford-California football game last week, paid more than the regular $5 for his ticket. Reports as high as $100 was being paid for tickets aroused college and federal authorities to the drastic steps. Any violators were to be dragged into court and given the full penalty of the law against ticket scalping.

WM. AND MARY DOWNS FAIR COLONIAL ELEVEN

George Washington Hockey Team Scores Two Goals Against William and Mary

The George Washington University women's hockey season ended in a match between George Washington and William and Mary on Wednesday, November 23, at two o'clock on the Ellipse. William and Mary scored a 6-2 victory.

The G. W. squad did not play its usual type of hockey against the William and Mary team. Neither team showed unusual team-work and often failed to back up the player with the ball. George Washington made the first score of the game but was outnumbered in points before time was called. Alice Graham made both goals for G. W. and Jenny Turnbull showed the fastest work in the line-up.

The line-up:

W. and M.	Pos.	G. W.

U. OF DETROIT STUDENTS TO GIVE MUSICAL COMEDY

DETROIT, Mich. (IP).—For the second year in succession the undergraduates at the University of Detroit are going in for professional musical comedy.

"Aces Wild," written by James S. Pooler, a student in the arts and sciences college of the institution, has been chosen as this year's production, and it will be directed by John Harwood, New York producer of "Oh Kay" and "Rio Rita," and by Max Scheck, arranger of the dances in the original "Student Prince."

The opera deals with sophisticated humor in the adventures of a defunct Broadway night club proprietor in the town of "Aces Wild" in Mexico. The characters are those of American society and the Mexican underworld, skillfully mingled in a struggle over Aztec jewels and the discovery of oil. It will be presented in Detroit on the week of December 18, after which its itinerary has not yet been determined.

CULTURE BATTLE LOOMS IN EAST

Harvard Council Proposes Novel Plan For Intercollegiate Competition With Yale

TEN MEN MAKE UP TEAM

Yale Has Not Accepted Offer Yet; Many Advantages and Faults in Plan

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (IP).—A Battle of Culture between Harvard and Yale with picked teams, competitive examinations, and gold medals for the winners; such is the novel proposal sent the Yale undergraduates by the Harvard Student Council.

In announcing the gift of a large sum of money for this purpose Harvard cites the infinite possibilities—some serious, some with a decided touch of humor—of such a plan. Various aspects are considered, ranging from the definite intellectual stimulus of such a contest, to the engrossing vision of scholastic stadiums and professionalism in the study hall.

In brief the plan is this: each college will select a team of ten men, who will take identical examinations, the winner to be determined by the collective average of each team. In addition to gold medals, money will be given to the winning side; it is suggested that this be used in purchasing books for the university.

Differences in the educational methods of the two universities lead the Harvard council to suggest that the first examinations be between the English Departments, since in that field, the methods used at Yale most closely resemble the Harvard tutorial system. In the future, however, the contest is to be extended to cover the entire field of learning, with the team consisting of picked men in every event: History, Literature, the Classics, English, French, Spanish, German, Economics, Philosophy, the Fine Arts, and the like.

The plan, as thus presented, has glaring disadvantages and glaring advantages according to the Harvard Council. As for the dangers: in the first place is the possibility of creating a false impression of the standards of learning at either college. Again, there is the chance of decidedly unfortunate publicity. The mere slogan "A Battle of Culture" seems particularly adopted to ridicule; the contest might become the delight of the cartoonist and the joy of the tabloid. On the other hand there is the really serious objection that the contest would result in the frenzied tutoring of the champions to the detriment of the college at large.

Opposed to such dangers, the Harvard Council lists benefits which it considers even more forceful. Primarily, there is the stimulus to scholarship, and the counteraction of any real or imaginary over-emphasis of athletics. The Council also refuses to recognize any basic difference in the principles of scholarship and athletics. Both are forms of education—athletic contests; why not intellectual?

The Yale authorities have not yet taken any action on the Harvard proposal.

Polish Student Taught Latin Instead of English; Now He's Suing the Prof

WARSAW, Poland (IP).—Abraham Noz, of London, asked his brother, Moses, of Warsaw, to come to London. Moses set about first to learn English. He hired a tutor who promised to teach him the British tongue in a few months, and then set out for London.

His brother met him, and Moses started to use his new tongue. "Salve, Abraham, frater tuus Moses te salutat."

"What?" said Abraham.

"Salve, Abraham," repeated Moses, "frater tuus Moses te salutat. Quid novi in familiar nostra?"

It developed that Moses had been taught Latin. Now the brothers are suing the tutor who admits he was hard up and did not know a line of English.

U. OF WEST VIRGINIA EXCLUDES KIRBY PAGE

Editor of "World Tomorrow" Barred From Campus Because of Periodical Tendencies

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., (by New Student Service).—West Virginia has earned a place in the hall of fame with Tennessee and Chicago as a third great defender of American ideals. Only now the complete story of Kirby Page exclusion incident has filtered through, and in its entirety it reads like an advertisement offering for sale or trade the University of West Virginia.

In October it was suggested that Page editor of the World Tomorrow, be invited to speak on the Morgantown campus. The Religious Work Council, consisting of the student pastors and the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. representatives, decided that it would be unwise and unsafe to have Mr. Page at the University. The Y. W. C. A., acting for itself, made arrangements to have the forbidden speaker come anyhow, and he was scheduled for two addresses.

At once the military department got into action. From the Reserve Officers Association they had received materials purporting to prove Kirby Page a dangerous radical, and if not an out and out red, at least a very pink pink. Besides, Page is a conscientious objector. So the R. O. T. C. took it upon itself to legislate for the university. It had no difficulty in enlisting the aid of the D. A. R. and the American Legion. With such prominent citizenry applying the thumbscrews, President Trotter succumbed, and announced to the Y. W. C. A. that the campus was closed to Mr. Page.

That wasn't the end. A few faculty members wondered out loud if a State University was to be censored by the campus military, and chaperoned by the townspeople. A few students, loath to place their faith even in a University president, also thought out loud. Two of them invited Mr. Page to come and speak off the campus. He did, before a fairly large and interested crowd.

The next day President Trotter declared himself boldly and frankly. He would bar from the campus any speaker toward whom there existed organized opposition. He was not going to have any fights on his presidential hands. And that ended the case so far as Mr. Trotter is concerned. And that is the end so far as the rest of the University is concerned—unless the few students and faculty members are willing to risk expulsion in order to do a little organized revolting.

Betty Wiltbank Prominent

Elizabeth Wiltbank was elected to the Hour Glass Honor Society in 1927, served as reporter on The University Hatchet in 1924-25-26 and in 1926-27 she served as Assignment Editor. Miss Wiltbank is now member and secretary of the Board of Directors of The Hatchet as well as a member of the Publications Council, and was a member of the Board of Editors of the George Washington Hand Book in 1927. In 1927 she was elected to Gamma Eta Zeta and held the office of secretary in 1927, and is president of the fraternity for the current year.

Hatchet Sport Editor, Aided By Poll, Picks All-Fraternity Team

Alexander, Knapp, Lindsey, Terry, and Smoot Form First Team; Six Fraternities Are Represented On All-Greek Aggregation; Fraternities Canvassed to Help Decide Problem

With the close of the inter-fraternity basketball series comes the task of picking an all-inter-fraternity basketball team. Picking an all-inter-fraternity team is always a difficult and thankless job; difficult because there are always many good players and only five positions to put them in, and thankless because there are many who think it should have been done differently.

However, since the time honored custom must be upheld, the Sport Editor, with the aid of a fraternity poll, must take it upon himself to perform the duty. The following represents the opinion voiced as to a first and second team along with honorable mention which is given to several players for outstanding work.

The Teams

First Team.	Pos.
Alexander (K. A.)	F.
Knapp (S. A. E.)	F.
Lindsey (S. A. E.)	C.
Terry (K. A.)	G.
Smoot (P. S. K.)	G.
Second Team.	Pos.
Elsberry (Acacia)	F.
Hill (S. N.)	F.
McGrew (T. U. O.)	C.
Durand (S. A. E.)	G.
Proctor (S. A. E.)	G.

Honorable mention: Forwards—Phillips (K. A.), Robertson (K. S.), McClellan (P. S. K.), Young (T. U. O.). Centers—Snow (S. C.) Motyka (Acacia). Guards—Gray (P. S. K.), Wineland (T. U. O.), Canney (H. S.), Brumbaugh (T. D. C.), Whyte (S. A. E.).

Alexander was high scorer this year with a total of 39 points to his credit. He is fast, a good passer, and always dangerous when given an opportunity to throw at the basket.

Knapp Best Forward

Knapp was probably the best all-round forward in the entire series, being an exceptionally good floor man. This S. A. E. forward was the entire life of his team. Knapp scored a total of 35 points in three games in which he participated.

Lindsey, tall S. A. E. center, is a dead shot and usually got the tap on his opponent. Lindsey is a good passer and could fit in with any team which makes good teamwork on the floor its main point of attack.

Terry gets one place on his scoring ability, heady play, and accurate passing. Terry also has the ability to stick with his man making it difficult for any forward to get away from him. He is probably the best floor player in the whole series.

Smoot, strong P. S. K. player, had one more vote for the other guard position than Durand, his nearest rival. Smoot is a heady player who understands basketball. His steady play and cool head is an asset to any team who aspires to championships.

Dr. Ryan of C. U. Is Newman Club Guest

Speaks On Neo-Scholastic Philosophy; Society Will Give Card Party At Burlington

Dr. James Ryan, of the Catholic University, addressed the Newman Club on November 22. His subject was "Neo-Scholastic Philosophy." Dr. Ryan traced the rise of the scholastic philosophy from the times of Albertus Magnus and St. Thomas Aquinas to the present revival of scholastic thinking in Europe and America. An interesting feature of the evening was an open forum on the subject of Philosophy.

Dr. Charles Clinton Swisher, Professor Emeritus, of History, was a guest of the club. Dr. Swisher gave an informal account of his recent European trip.

Plans for the card party on December 8 have been completed. It is to be held at the Burlington Hotel. Marie Collins and Helen Burch have charge of prizes; Mary Miller, Joe O'Connor and Jimmy Hoffman, card tables. Distribution of tickets is in charge of Nash Knapp. The reception committee is composed of Marion Booth, Jack Kearful and Agnes O'Brien.

The next meeting will be held in Room 22 of Corcoran Hall, on Tuesday, December 6, at 8 p. m. The speaker of the evening has not been announced, but an interesting program is being planned. All G. W. students are invited.

Grid Team Drinks, Charge of Junior College Editor, Newest Stormy Petrel

SAN FRANCISCO. (IP.)—Gin and football, is a mixture that will not win games.

At least that is the conclusion of the editor of the San Matean, official publication of the San Mateo Junior College. The fact that the San Mateo stands fifth in the California Coast conference of ten junior colleges this season is cited as evidence.

Claude Petty, editor of the San Matean, in an article in his paper, made the charge that the college team lacks "pep" because the members break training rules and go on gin parties. Petty declared that several men on the team were "inebriated" following the game with Santa Barbara.

The Petty charges stirred up a great sensation in the college, both faculty and students immediately starting movements to have the matter thoroughly investigated. Members of the team warned to be quiet until all evidence was sifted, expressed the belief that the charges would result in the cancellation of the trip the team is to take on December 3 to Honolulu to play the St. Louis college there. It was also thought that the charges might result in the cancellation of the remaining games of the season, and if the charges are proven, that the guilty gridders will be expelled.

MOTHERS' DAY TO BE INAUGURATED FRIDAY

Dean Anna L. Rose Announces Annual Reception to Mothers of Freshmen Women

This Friday, December 2, Dean Rose will inaugurate the first annual George Washington University Mother's Day.

The purpose of this day will be to give the mothers of the freshmen girls of the University an idea of how the average freshman girl spends her time, and to better acquaint the mothers with the faculty and conditions at George Washington.

The mothers of all the freshman girls will attend, and it is expected that a mothers day for the mothers of the boys may be held at some future date.

Features Scheduled

Starting off with registration, the program for the day has many attractive features, including a basketball game, and a gymnasium exhibition, by the girls gym classes. Following registration there is an address of welcome by Dr. Marvin, and Miss Rose will give a short talk.

Billie Wright will tell the mothers of the student activities open to the freshmen girls, and the benefits to be derived therefrom, and Marcelle Le Menager will speak on scholarship. After the Gym exhibit, lunch will be served in Corcoran Hall, Room 1 by the Domestic Science classes. All the professors and instructors who teach freshman girls will be present at the luncheon, so that the mothers may know the faculty, and discuss subjects of mutual interest.

After luncheon the mothers will be divided into small groups and each group will be shown around the University by an upperclass girl. The day will wind up with a basketball game.

CARDINALS OUT-POINT COLONIALS IN BATTLE

however, made a first down on the 25-yard line when he reeled off a 5-yard gain off left tackle. A beautiful pass, Sapp to Carey, advanced the ball to the Cardinal 45-yard line. A line buck, a pass, and another attempted pass which failed, found the Colonials on the C. U. 40-yard line with 5 yards to go. Stehman punted to Foley on the C. U. 30-yard marker.

Line bucks by Malevich and Murphy failed to gain. Foley's punt went outside on the G. W. 20-yard line. After failing to gain ground on two attempts through the line, Stehman punted to Foley who returned the ball from the C. U. 40-yard stripe to mid-field. Two off tackle plunges and an unsuccessful pass found the Cardinals 5 yards short. Foley then punted to the Colonials' 25-yard mark.

On the second play Sapp shot a pretty pass to Carey who ran to the 50-yard line before he was downed. Sapp took a lateral pass around left end for a 20-yard gain, placing the ball on C. U.'s 30-yard line. Murphy, Cardinal left halfback, intercepted a pass and ran it back to the 33-yard line. At this point Catholic University seemed to come to life and displayed some offensive power. Murphy and Malevich crashed through the George Washington line for successive first downs. Foley brought the oval to the Colonial 40-yard line by dashing around right end for a 7-yard gain. The Colonials braced and forced Foley to kick. The ball went out of bounds at the G. W. 20-yard line. Clapper gained 5 yards, but Sapp fumbled a lateral pass which was snatched up by Malevich. On the next play Foley darted through the line for the first touchdown. The Cardinals were awarded the extra point when George Washington was off side.

Clapper took the kick-off back to his own 20-yard mark. After an unsuccessful pass, Lopeman tore off 11 yards after which a pass to Carey gave G. W. a first down on their own 45-yard line as the quarter ended. C. U. 7—G. W. 6.

Second Quarter

On the first play Stehman made a sensational 30-yard gain through tackle which placed the ball on C. U.'s 25-yard line. Two bucks and a pass netted the Colonials another first down. On an attempted forward pass, Sapp to Stehman, Murphy, of C. U., intercepted the ball and raced up the sideline 91 yards for the second C. U. score. Malevich added the extra point by placement kick.

George Washington took the kick-off on the 14-yard line. A brilliant 25-yard run by Stehman gave the Colonials a first down on the 50-yard line. Again Murphy intercepted a pass on his 30-yard line. Foley punted to G. W.'s 20-yard line when the Cardinals were unable to advance. Stehman returned the punt on the third down. With the ball on the 40-yard line, Heiner, who had replaced Schmidt, fumbled and Perry, of G. W., recovered. Sapp dashed off a pretty 25-yard gain around the end. After an unsuccessful lateral pass Stehman crashed through tackle, placing the oval on the 1-yard mark. Lopeman bored through for the touchdown. Sapp's attempt at placement was low.

Hartzog kicked off to Murphy, who was downed on his own 20-yard line. Foley punted on the third down when C. U. failed on the Cardinals' 40-yard line. The Colonials gained five more yards on a pass as the period ended. C. U. 14—G. W. 6.

Third Quarter

Clapper opened the third period with a bang when he took the kick-off on the 5-yard line and, with beautiful interference, raced 95 yards for a touchdown. Stehman made the placement kick for the extra point. Catholic University, however, would not be outdone for they came back strong and scored again within a few minutes.

Howell took the kick-off on C. U.'s 17-yard line and returned it to the 35-yard line before he was nailed. A 15-yard penalty gave the Cardinals a first down on the 50-yard line. Foley hurled a 30-yard pass to Long, who was downed on G. W.'s 20-yard mark. C. U. got a break when Clapper batted Murphy's heave to Long in an attempt to prevent a score only to have it fall into Foley's arms. It was a matter of just a few steps on the part of Foley to cross the goal line for another touchdown. Malevich added the extra point.

Stehman made a nice return of Tierney's kick-off to his own 30-yard line. Lopeman passed to Sapp for a 5-yard gain, and then Clapper circled the end for 14 more.

Two successive attempts at passing followed by a 5-yard penalty put the Colonials back to the Cardinal 48-yard line. Stehman was forced to punt to Foley who was nailed in his tracks on his own 11-yard line.

After failing to gain, Foley punted on the third down. Stehman took the ball on G. W.'s 30-yard mark and returned it to the 45-yard mark before he was stopped. On a sweeping end run by Sapp and line plunges by Stehman, the Colonials advanced the ball to C. U.'s 32-yard line. The Cardinals recovered a fumble when Stehman attempted a plunge off tackle.

A loss, an unsuccessful pass, and another plunge found the Cardinals short 7 yards. Foley punted weakly to George Washington's 30-yard marker. The punt was returned By Stehman on the third down.

The Cardinals started a march that carried them within 2 yards of the goal line. Foley's pass to Murphy was good for 17 yards and then Murphy streaked around end for 7 more. After Champa had failed to gain, Foley, on an off tackle buck, carried the ball to the 3-yard line. Malevich hit center and bored through for a yard, placing the ball on the 2-yard line as the quarter ended.

Fourth Quarter

On the first play, Murphy crashed through right guard for the six pointer. Malevich's attempted placement went wide.

Clapper returned the kick-off to the 33-yard line and the Crummen started on a march that took them down the field. Plunges by Sapp and Clapper and a 15-yard penalty gave the Colonials a first down on the G. W. 45-yard line. A line buck and a pass to Carey scored another first down, placing the ball on C. U.'s 34-yard mark.

Hoping to take the Cardinals by surprise, Sapp hurled a long pass which was intercepted by Foley, who was down on the George Washington 10-yard line. "Bear" Walker broke through the line and blocked Foley's kick, but the latter recovered the oval behind his own goal line for a safety.

Clapper returned Tierney's kick to the 48-yard line. A beautiful pass, Sapp to Carey, advanced the ball to the Cardinal 22-yard line. Stehman bored through center for 4-yards and a pass, Sapp to Clapper, netted the Colonials a first down on the 8-yard line. Three plunges by Stehman took the ball over the last line. George Washington lost the extra point when a pass, Sapp to Carey, failed.

Hartzog kicked off to Raiche, who returned the ball to his 35-yard line. A 20-yard pass was good, but on the next play Murphy was thrown for a loss. An unsuccessful pass was followed by a spectacular 35-yard pass by Murphy to Gerth, who made a brilliant catch. He was downed on the 3-yard line. Line plays by Malevich, Murphy, and Foley failed to gain ground as the game ended.

In an article in the December American Magazine, they tell how they have put to practical use the lessons learned in their chemistry courses, and have been busy exterminating rats throughout the United States.

Luck and "Heads Up" Football Features Colorful C. U. Battle

Theft of Kisses Unpunished As Clapper Runs 95 Yards to Touchdown—New Colonial Band Makes Hit In First Public Appearance—Thirsty Individual Seeks "Highball."

"You can't beat the luck of the Irish!"

That sentence, in the mouth of an ardent Colonial rooter, seemed to sum up the attitude of George Washington fans after the Catholic University game. No other explanation was plausible enough to account for the final score after the Buff and Blue "Ironmen by necessity," had out-passed, outrushed, and out-kicked the Cardinal eleven throughout the entire contest.

"Those fellows from C. U. played a 'heads up' game, all right," the same rooter continued, "but can you beat the breaks those guys got? A man stumbling, and half-falling to the ground has a pass knocked right into his hands, and he tumbles over the goal line for a touchdown—enough margin to win the game. No, sir, they got the breaks."

But regardless of the final outcome of the Turkey Day Classic out at the Brookland Stadium, the game itself was all that one could wish for in the way of a fast, clean game. Spirit ran high on both sides of the field, and during the half, parties could be seen leaving the rival stands and crossing the gridiron to the opposing side, where there was much talk of "odds," and "put up or shut up."

Movie Houses Suffer

Local movie houses are doubtless glad that football season is over, so people will flock to their doors to see love-making scenes. Spectators on the George Washington side of the stadium saw no less than twenty cheering young Romeos gather up in their arms twenty equally happy young Juliets, and implant at least one solid and substantial kiss apiece on crimsoned lips, as Clapper swept through the entire Catholic University eleven on his 95-yard dash for a touchdown.

No one particularly noticed these bits of by-play, for everyone was busy crashing in his neighbor's hat, and drowning out the music which a jubilant band was blaring forth. And speaking of the band, its melodies during time-outs were well received, and its assistance in leading "Hail to the Buff and Blue," prevented discord such as resulted when the Brooklanders sought to sing their allegiance song. The bandmaster probably tucked away in his mind the facts that "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," is a good piece to play after any Colonial touchdown, and that "Dixie," is good for a hearty round of applause any time.

Critics Routed

Partisans of other local colleges whose football season had ended were loud in their sarcastic comments on George Washington cheering, until the third cheer, when the whole grandstand seemingly joined in. Thereafter, hostile looks from Buff and Blue fans were sufficient to squelch any would-be with who ventured to voice any opinion. These cohorts of other schools had their discomfiture increased during the second half of the game when George Washington started its rally.

Cries of, "We can give two touchdowns and then beat them," "Who said this was a massacre?" "Go on back to —— where you belong, you crepe hanger," and "How much do you want to bet?" effectually silenced the foreign cliques, who lost no time in slinking away. Thereafter, no dissention was heard in the Colonial stands.

A horde of small boys invaded the stadium shortly after the game started, by the simple method of climbing over or crawling under the fence. During the half, nearly a hundred swarmed pell-mell over the gridiron, and refused to return to the stands over the wire surrounding the playing field until forced to do so by University officials. One boy who stayed on the hill behind the stands was rewarded by a Catholic University pennant which fluttered into his hands from a airplane which circled the stadium.

The faculty of the University, headed by President Cloyd Heck Marvin, was well represented in the reserved seats of the field boxes, where they made several valient attempts to join in the cheering behind them.

As the cheerleaders shouted the request for a "locomotive for the team," a fan smiled, and pointed south. "There she is," he remarked.

"Where?" inquired his neighbor.

"Coming down the B. & O. tracks by the bridge," was the reply.

Pressbox Full

Over on the Catholic University side of the stadium was a crowded pressbox, filled with nearly everyone else but bona fide representatives of the press. Friends of the Washington correspondent of the "Daily Howl" of Podunk jostled Catholic University students who "crashed" the pressbox gate, to the exclusion of reporters who anxiously scribbled notes from impossible angles and cramped positions so that the outside world might know who scored what and why.

The Cardinal cheerleader called for "Number Two" on his chart. "Let's have a 'High-ball,'" he exhorted.

A red-nosed individual sat up quickly and muttered rather thickly, "Where?"

"That's what the police want to know," comforted a nearby reporter.
